NORGORD'S APPOINTMENT MARKS NEW ERA IN CATTLE TUBERCULOSIS CONTROL

Appropriation of $5,000,000 to Pay For Slaughtered Animals and Securing by Commissioner Pyrke of Noted Wisconsin Expert a Long Step Toward Clean, Healthful Milk.

An index of the determination of the state of New York to eliminate tuberculosis from dairy herds of the state is found in the announcement of Commissioner Pyrke of the Department of Farms and Markets, of the appointment of Christian P. Norgord as assistant commissioner of that department. Mr. Norgord has been commissioner of agriculture of Wisconsin since 1915, having organized the department in that year, and is an outstanding national figure in the field of disease-control. The accession of Commissioner Norgord to the New York State Department of Farms and Markets should be considered in connection with the action of the New York state legislature in appropriating five millions of dollars for indemnities for slaughtered tuberculosis animals, and marks the advent of a new era in tuberculosis control.

In announcing the appointment Commissioner Pyrke said:

"Tuberculosis is the greatest disease menace to the dairy industry. It is a first cousin to the great white plague in man. As dairying has progressed in the years past, so this dread disease has been steadily disseminated throughout the country. It was imported into American from Europe and has traveled from the east to the west, from the older to the newer dairy districts. Restrictive measures in America with reference to the continued spread and suppression of this disease started with the introduction of the tuberculin test in 1892. The work, however, was not put upon a scientific and organized basis until the development of the accredited herd idea in 1915. This idea originated nearly simultaneously, and independently, in the minds of Dr. Dyson, of Illinois, and Commissioner Norgord, of Wisconsin. The basic thought was to treat each herd as an entity and to offer encouragement to the original owner to clean up his herd, and then keep it clean. To secure the advantages which naturally flow from the possession of clean herds, the herds were designated "accredited" herds after they had been tested a second time and found free from any taint of tuberculosis. The accredited herd idea was adopted as a state policy by Wisconsin in 1918, and from there has spread virtually to every state in the union.

"The next noteworthy development in the progress of disease-control measures was the area-test policy. This idea also was originated by Commissioner Norgord and put into effect in Wisconsin in 1917. It is a logical development of the accredited herd, the process being, first, the clean and accredited herd, and then the clean and accredited area. The first area work in the United States was started in Waukesha county, Wisconsin, in October 1917. Barron county in that state, however, was the first county in the United States to compete its area test (January, 1922.) Area testing has now become a standard practice throughout the United States. In 1918 Commissioner Norgord arranged a cooperative agreement between the federal government and the state of Wisconsin. Over 40 states of the Union have since entered into cooperative arrangements with the government.

"While Mr. Norgord, as a national figure, is most conspicuously known because of his identification with tuberculosis-control work, his activities by no means have been confined to that field. In 1906-1907 he was special agent for the United States Department of Agriculture in charge of barley breeding. In 1907-1908 he was agronomist in charge of soils and crops, University of Arkansas, and in the same period organized farmers' institutes and served as superintendent of Farmers' Institutes. Later he was associate professor of agronomy in the University of Wisconsin, and, in addition, had charge of the institutional farms of the state. In 1915 he was summoned to organize the newly established department of agriculture in Wisconsin.

"Mr. Norgord, in addition to his pioneer work in tuberculosis control, has blazed the trail in other directions. Prior to 1918 there had been some conflict and overlapping between state departments of agriculture and colleges of agriculture. In 1918 Mr. Norgord published a plan for the organization and field work of agriculture, which was adopted by the National Association of Commissioners of Agriculture, the Association of Land Grant Colleges, and the United States secretary of agriculture. It is of interest to note that this policy advocated an advisory board for departments of agriculture, with power to appoint the commissioner of agriculture for an indeterminate term. This policy has already been adopted by New Jersey and New York.

"Mr. Norgord also originated the area methods of cleaning up American and European foul brood in bees in 1918, and those methods have been successfully applied in 13 counties in Wisconsin. He also started the present form of cooperation of crop-reporting service between the state and federal governments at the beginning of the war. The present head of the corn-reporting service of the United States was taken from the Wisconsin department of agriculture to introduce the Wisconsin policy in other states of the union, and it has now been adopted in most of the states. Mr. Norgord took over the management of the Wisconsin state fair in 1915, at a time when it was little more than a district fair, and has developed it into one of the five or six largest and best managed state fairs in the United States.

"Commissioner Norgord was reared on a farm in Wisconsin, and for many years has owned and operated a farm, specializing in the breeding of Guernsey cattle, Oxford sheep, and Duroc-Jersey hogs. He was graduated from Bangor High School in 1895, and from the Whitewater Normal College in 1898. He received the degree of Ph.B. from the University of Wisconsin in 1903, and of B.S. from College of Agriculture, University of Wisconsin, in 1906. His family consists of a wife and three children.

"It is of interest to note that with the coming to New York of Commissioner Norgord, the experience of the two great dairy states of the union, Wisconsin and New York, will be united in a single organization."

Y. W. C. A. CAPITAL REACHES $24,000

The added contributions that came in Monday at Y. W. C. A. headquarters and were received by the executive committee amounted to enough to bring the total up to $24,000. A. D. Rose contributed $100; the Ladies' Aid Society of the Rondout Presbyterian Church, $50; the Prisma Society of the Kingston High School, $196.41; Mrs. Antonio Knauth, $250, bringing the full total to $24,000.38.

In Saturday's report it should have stated that $10 was contributed by Mr. Safford in memory of Faith Safford.

THE STORY OF "MIGHTY LAK' A ROSE," AT KEENEY'S.

'A gang of successful, desperate crooks tried to steal the heart of a young and innocent girl violinist, turn her into a crook and use her in their big schemes. But the girl, with nothing but her sweetness and the music of her violin, turned these crooks, male and female, into paths they did not want to go. This, in brief, is the story of "Mighty Lak' a Rose," which is at Keeney's again tonight and Wednesday. "The Hottentot," a Thomas H. Ince production, will be shown at Keeney's on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

A close-up view of a monster 90-ton "bull" whale which was sighted by Columbus in 1492 on his voyage of discovery, probably sounds just a trifle far fetched. However, in the Elmer Clifton production "Down to the Sea in Ships," which is showing at the Opera House all this week, there is a 1,000 year-old whale taken which Columbus might have seen, and then, again, he might not have.

Devotees of Mary Pickford and the movies in general have been taxing the capacity of the Orpheum Theatre at every performance since the opening of "Tess of the Storm Country." Thursday, Friday and Saturday six acts of vaudeville and a late Paramount picture of 1923, Dorothy Dalton in "Fog Bound."

William Moran, who plays the part of a thieving first mate in Betty Compson's "The Bonded Woman," showing today at the Auditorium, is much in demand for character parts requiring a difficult makeup.

ZION CHURCH ANNIVERSARY WILL CLOSE TONIGHT

The service last night at the Zion Church was well attended. On the platform was seated these clergymen: L. Williams, H. D. Lowber and S. T. Quann who took part in the exercises. An interesting part of the program was the addresses by three old members of the church, Charlotte West, Norman West and James Butler. Each in turn in their own way was a source of interest. This evening the special anniversary supper will be served at 6 o'clock, consisting of baked ham, creamed and mashed potatoes, string beans, cabbage, salad, German blanc-mange, pudding. Many clergymen will take part in the evening's program.

Tire Prices Misprinted.

In the advertisement of the C-L Tire Shop, which appeared in Monday night's Freeman, the price quoted on 31x4 and 35x5 tires was an error and should have read $22.95 and $34.95 respectively. In one instance the price was too low and in the other the price as published was too high.

Opening of Coster's Inn.

Coster's Inn on the Kingston-New Paltz state highway at Rifton opens on Decoration Day as detailed in the advertisement elsewhere in this issue.

Denz Park Opening.

Denz Park at Rifton will open for the season Thursday evening.

MEMORIAL DAY IN KINGSTON

Memorial Day will be fittingly observed in Kingston on Wednesday. There will be short memorial services at Montrepose, Wiltwyck and St. Mary's cemeteries after which the participants will march to the city hall where the following exercises will be held, commencing at 11 o'clock.

Call to order by Mayor Walter P. Crane.

Music—Star Spangled Banner by Band.

Prayer.

Reading—Lincoln's Gettysburg Address by Solomon Roodney.

Address—Rev. Arthur S. Cole.

Music—By Band.

The Memorial Day programs at the three cemeteries mentioned have been arranged and are under the auspices of Pratt Post Memorial Day Association, and was printed in full in the Freeman last Thursday.

The common council at its last session at the request of the American Legion and Tappen Camp, Sons of Veterans, went on record as being opposed to public sports or other amusements on the morning of Memorial Day.

So far as known this request is being adhered to except for the fact that the Colonials will play the first game of a double header with the Peekskill A. C. at the Fair Grounds at 10:30 o'clock At this game the Colonial management is planning to have exercises at 11 o'clock which will consume a period of five minutes.

The local theaters are planning for the holiday with an attractive program for both afternoon and evening.

Kingston Point Park is open for the season.

Special Trip to New York.

The steamer Homer Ramsdell of the Central Hudson line will make a special trip to New York city on Wednesday morning, leaving Ferry street at 6 o'clock.

Chatman's Condition the Same.

The condition of Brewster Chatman, who was shot at Prattsville on Sunday, was reported at the Benedictine Hospital as being the same today.

POST OFFICE TO CLOSE WEDNESDAY

Kingston's post-office department will be closed all day Memorial Day, but the lobbies at the Central office and both sub-stations will be open all day for the convenience of box holders. All windows, however, will be closed and no business transacted. There will be no delivery or collection of mail Wednesday.

This is the first time in history of the Kingston post-office department that all business was suspended. In other cities, however, it has been a custom since the economy policy was instituted by the federal post-office department in an effort to conserve funds.

SID ROSS IS BACK AGAIN

Sid Ross has returned to the Colonial fold once more and he will very likely pitch one game against the Peekskill A. C. on Wednesday. Ross comes back this time with the understanding that he will receive no pay from the Colonial management unless he keeps in condition.

It is also understood that the Colonials have lines out for Carroll, the Holy Cross pitcher, who only recently turned down an offer of $10,000 from the Pittsburgh Pirates. Tannersville and Stamford are also understood to be bidding for his services. He pitched for Stamford last season and made an excellent record with that team.

350 MORE AUTOMOBILE LICENSE PLATES ARRIVE

County Clerk Saxe received today 350 additional license plates for pleasure automobiles from Auburn prison. They are numbered 1229-101 to 1229-300, from 1229-326 to 1229-425 and from 1229-451 to 1229-500. Notice has been received that additional pleasure car license plates are being sent from Chicago where they have been made.

Shooting Was in Delaware County.

The shooting of Brewster Chatman, near Prattsville, Sunday, by James Hines of the Board of Water Supply police took place in Delaware county instead of in Greene county, the scene being but a short distance over the boundary line of the two counties. District Attorney Charles G. Coffin of Greene county on being notified of the homicide went at once to Prattsville, but on his arrival found that District Attorney O'Connor of Delaware county had arrived and claimed jurisdiction.

SCOUTS WITNESS THRILLING FILM

The Monday evening performance of the film, "Down to the Sea in Ships," was attended by 110 Boy Scouts of this city, who attended the show in a body. This film is a most interesting story. The plot revolves around a dramatic love story, which, of course, ends happily, but in the progress of which there is interwoven situations which stir the blood of those romantically inclined. The film records scenes of one of the most thrilling enterprises ever undertaken, that of hunting whales and the actual harpooning of one of these gigantic creatures supplies excitement enough to satisfy the most exacting person. The film will be shown for the remainder of the week at the Kingston Opera House.

K. H. S. TENNIS TEAM WON CLOSE MATCH

From Stone School at Forsyth Park Monday Afternoon by a 3 to 2 Score—Wednesday Afternoon Albany Plays Here.

Monday afternoon on the Forsyth Park courts, the tennis team of Kingston High School defeated by a score 3-2 the team of the Stone School. The match was hotly contested, first one school being in the lead and then the other overtaking that lead. Kingston's hopes were pinned on MacFadden and Stelle, who won both their singles and doubles. This was the best interscholastic match yet played on the local court.

Albany High School will meet the locals on the Forsyth Park courts tomorrow at 1:30.

In Monday's match, MacFadden won out in a hotly contested singles with Warner, taking the first set 7-5, losing the second 8-10, and then taking the final easily 6-3. The overhead work here was excellent. MacFadden's excellent smashes accounted for more than one point to his credit. Warner made a good showing in returning some hot ones and also sent over a few that scored well.

Stelle came up from behind in his singles with Cutler, losing the first 4-6, then holding on tight to his change in a deuce set and winning it 8-6. Getting stronger as he played, the Kingston man won the third easily 6-3. His net work proved the bugbear for the Stone School player, and his serve had the visitor guessing at more than one instance.

Merine did his best in the singles, but was out-classed by Grayden, who took the set 4-1, 6-1.

MacFadden and Stelle showed some excellent team work in their doubles against Davidson and Cutler, and, although the visitors played well together, the set went to the Kingston players 6-1, 5-7, 6-4. Again, MacFadden's serve and good overhead work and Stelle's net playing figured largely in the winning.

Herzog and Clayton made a brave stand against Warner and Orr, but the more experienced players of the Stone School outclassed the local men and won easily 4-6, 2-6.

TWO MINOR ACCIDENTS ARE REPORTED TO THE POLICE

Edward Lutz reported to police headquarters Monday that he had struck a Ford car owned by Edward Avery of West Shokan at the corner of Franklin street and Clinton avenue. The damage was slight.

William McDonough reported that he had struck a small boy named Howard Williams of 65 West Union street on Monday. The boy was not injured.

Asleep On A Porch.

James Wilson, 50 years old, who hales from London, England, felt sleepy Monday afternoon and picked out a porch on Cedar street for a nap. The householder called up the police and Officer Roedell roused James from his slumbers and placed him in the county jail where he continued his interrupted nap until this morning when he faced Judge Schirick in police court. James said he had just enough money to pay his fare to New York city and the judge gave him the opportunity of leaving Kingston.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS AVERAGE 57.164 IN PHYSICAL TESTS JUST ENDED

They Did Better Than Last Year in Statewide Scoring—Girls' Results, Ready in Day or Two, Will Pull Down School Average Somewhat.

The work of checking up the records made by the high school students in the Physical Ability Test is progressing rapidly. The boys' score has been completed and the girls will be ready in a day or two. The boys made a very creditable stand, scoring an average of 57.164. This score is very good compared to some of the scores of last year; it also indicates a remarkable improvement over the local schools' record of last year. It is believed that the girls' score will pull down the school record, but it will not be so much but that the school will stand a good chance for some state honors.

In the test, the groups were divided into a junior and senior division, the former for freshmen, the latter for sophomores, juniors and seniors. The scoring in the two is different, the freshmen's score scale being less strenuous.

Following are the honor students:

Highest number of points:

1. Ross Vogt, 276 points.
2. Edward Leverett (freshman score 287 points), 275 points.
3. Cornelius Barley, 272 points.
4. Albert Terry, 271 points.

LINCOLN R. LONG QUITS POLITICS

Delaware County Assemblyman, Former Methodist Clergyman Here, Announces Retirement—Praise for Men He Met.

The Rev. Lincoln R. Long, who at one time was pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church of this city, has announced in an open letter to the voters of Delaware county that he will retire from active politics and return to the ministry at the close of his present term as assemblyman, to which position he has been elected five consecutive terms.

Mr. Long's record has been very acceptable to the people of Delaware county, and his renomination and reelection would be practically certain the coming fall if he would become a candidate again. In announcing his retirement from politics, Mr Long calls attention to the fact that he has aided in ratifying two amendments to the constitution of the United States. "And I have had a part in some of the most important state activities of the generation in which we live," he says. "It has been an important era because of the breaking loose from old traditions on account of the irresistible trend of events in the last decade."

He calls attention to the increase in expenditure of state money to schools and predicts a still further increase. The rapid expansion of auto traffic has necessitated new sets of laws, new and more complex machinery of government, and the aspirant for gubernatorial or legislative honors in these days faces no light and easy task. "We break loose from the past to face weighty problems in the future as we go forward in solving the problem of government by a free people," he says.

"One noteworthy change in legislative affairs," says Assemblyman Long, "is the gradual shifting of power from party leaders to people. Few realize how rapidly this change has progressed in five years. More and more state legislators heed the voice of constituents rather than leader More and more party decisions as to policy are worked out in conference where each may have his say. The party whip is slipping from authority. Party decision has been the consensus of party opinion expressed in conference."

In speaking of personal experiences and impressions, Mr. Long says:

"I should like to tell you of friendships formed by service together in the assembly; of how the rich young man worth five millions stood on the same level with the poor member from the hill country; of how the boys respected the minister yet did not baby him; how they made him open the session with prayer if no city clergyman appeared and were pleased when he rang true and was brief—but all that is personal. You must go to know.

"But I must pay a sincere tribute to the honesty and intelligence, of the ability and good heart, of the many men of both parties with whom I have been associated during my term of service now closing. Party lines have not made men like and respect each other less—they play fair and hold no grudges. Bitterness is practically unknown in legislative halls A party fight may make good stuff for a news reporter but when the smoke of battle has cleared away the fighters are seen visiting and laughing together. And if I ever again visit the great metropolis, wherever I find a member of the state assembly of the last five years, whether Republican or Democratic, Jew or Gentile, I shall have some one to show me the sights and we shall simply be American citizens together."

MONTHLY MEETING OF ACCORD POULTRY CLUB.

At the monthly meeting of the Accord Poultry Club, held last Wednesday evening, J. D. Lester, commercial poultryman of Highland, N. Y., gave a very interesting talk on "Feeds and Feeding of Young Stock." He described the G. L. F. rations and said that the formulas used in mixing these poultry feeds were agreed upon by authorities of the experiment stations of three different states, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, as containing the best possible combinations of ingredients. These G. L. F. feeds are available at the various Farmers' Cooperative organizations throughout the state.

The use of milk in its various forms was next taken up by the speaker and experiments in the use of different forms of manufactured milk in feeding laying hens described and results given.

After Mr. Lester's talk, E. L. Chase, of the Ulster County Farm Bureau, spoke of a recent trip he had made to Buffalo, where he inspected the mills where G. L. F. feeds are graded and prepared for market. He described the grading processes in use and said he was very favorably impressed with their methods and the quality of feeds prepared. Ice cream was served after the meeting.

Fader of New York. The bride was charmingly dressed in a travelling suit of velvyne ashes of roses adorned by a beautiful corsage bouquet of sweet peas and lillies of the valley. Her picture hat was draped with a heavily embroidered veil. An elaborate dinner most appetizingly prepared was served in splendid fashion. Guests from East Orange, Newark, Brooklyn, New York city, Winsted, Conn., Newburgh and Ellenville attended the affair. After an extended trip to Atlantic City, the bride and groom will return to their newly furnished home in East Orange, New Jersey.

Africa's Rise.

Northeast of the tip of Pernambuco, in South Africa, the ocean beds open out somewhat. The northern portion of Africa has been strongly driven in here. In this place it has spread out until it is low, all except the Atlas mountains, which have crumpled where Africa was driven bodily against the mass of Spain. But in the south there could be no spreading because there was no direction to spread. The only way to go was up. So up Africa rose.

Next to being right in this world, the best of all things is to be clearly and definitely wrong, because you will come out somewhere. If you go buzzing about between right and wrong, vibrating and fluctuating, you come out nowhere, but if you are absolutely and thoroughly and persistently wrong, you must some of these days have the extreme good fortune of knocking your head against a fact, and that sets you all straight again.—Thomas Huxley.

All the Law Allows

By MARION E. LEIGHTON

(©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Jerry wasn't angry—he was mad! He jammed his hat down savagely, stamped out of the house, and slammed the door in less time than it takes to tell it, and with a great deal more violence than it could ever possibly be told.

Mr. Dayton paused in the living room doorway and viewed his daughter's flushed face and flashing eyes, giving vent to his astonishment in a low whistle that contained something of amusement as well.

"Whew!" he uttered, by way of introducing himself. "What's stirred up old Jerry?"

His daughter turned on him with a flash of resentment.

"Don't call him 'Old Jerry,'" she snapped. Then she softened visibly as she struggled to fight back the threatening flood of tears. "Oh, dad," she finished, "you know he's not old!"

Dad smiled sympathetically as he placed an arm across her shoulders.

"Twenty-six, isn't he, Madge? But he's so steady and—sure—that I always think of him as Old Jerry. What's wrong, dear?"

"He says I am," faltered Madge. Then her eyes flashed again as she raised her head from his shoulder. "But it's just his unreasonable jealousy," she added.

Mr. Dayton repressed a smile. "Jealous? Of whom?" he asked.

"He says I shouldn't go to theaters and suppers with Dan. The idea! And Danny is such an old friend!"

Mr. Dayton didn't smile. "Well, dear, don't you think Jerry is right?" he queried. "You're engaged to Jerry, you know, and Dan's being an 'old friend' makes it look—shall I say suspicious?"

"Daddy!" reproachfully. "That's nonsense!"

"But is it, dear?" he persisted seriously. "Reverse the circumstances; think how you would feel if Jerry were the offender. And you know Jerry isn't."

"I—I never looked at it like that," she confessed, after a moment. "I guess Jerry is right."

Mr. Dayton searched his daughter's countenance with speculative eyes.

"I wonder if my little girl is big enough to tell him so?" he asked, affectionately.

After a brief struggle, Madge conquered her pride and nodded brightly.

"I'll call him up right away," she promised.

But Jerry wasn't to be found that evening, and Madge was finally forced to give up and go to bed with an uneasy feeling of self-reproach.

Frequent attempts to get him at the office the day following proved ineffectual, and Madge spent a miserable day, hoping Jerry would relent and make his customary call.

At the office next day Jerry's partner informed her that Mr. Graham had left for Maine on a hunting trip. No, he hadn't said when he would return. What part of Maine? Roxie, he thought.

"Never saw Jerry quite so downhearted before," he confided. "Something's wrong with him—but he would not tell me about it. Hope he doesn't get shot down there in the woods; dangerous place, you know."

That thought worried Madge all day, and by evening she had formulated a plan that seemed possible of execution. She broached it as Mr. Dayton had settled down in his chair with the evening paper.

"Daddy," she said, coming up behind his chair and running her fingers through his hair, "you need a vacation. Let's take that hunting trip to Maine and get our deer."

She could have said "my dear," and Mr. Dayton wouldn't have noticed.

"Impossible, Madge! I couldn't—"

A soft hand over his mouth cut off further remonstrance.

"Daddy—you must! You've been wanting—"

An only daughter at the age of twenty-one is usually a hard proposition to battle when she believes in the molasses method of fly-catching, and Mr. Dayton was quite fond of molasses. Consequently he awoke one morning in a sportsman-invaded town, gulped down exhilarating mouthfuls of balsam-scented air, a cupful of excellent coffee and a real venison steak, and accompanied a hardened guide and a strangely excited daughter into a strange wilderness.

The afore-mentioned guide was Madge's particular piece of good luck.

He remembered Mr. Graham and he knew his guide. He thought he could lead them to Mr. Graham's camp—but it was a long, hard trail.

All this information was acquired without Mr. Dayton's knowledge, and the guide was willing to keep the secret.

Toward nightfall Madge agreed with the guide: it was a long, hard trail. Over rugged mountains, through dense forests, sparkling streams, marshy ground and burned land. What the morning promised as a day of recreation grew to be a dragging hardship. But Madge was happy.

Deer signs grew thicker as they forged ahead. The sun was getting ready to call it a day and let the hunter's moon take up its nightly duties when they paused at the top of a mountain. The grandeur of the scene held the newcomers spellbound, but the guide gazed over the vast area of wooded slopes with the vacant stare of the seasoned veteran accustomed to nature's wonders.

The sharp report of a rifle shattered the silence and they faced sharply to the right. No sound broke the ensuing silence.

"Oh, wait here! I'm going to see!" exclaimed Madge.

Before they could remonstrate she was gone.

She broke through the brush directly behind a man who was bending over a prostrate buck. At the sound of her coming he turned.

"Jerry!" she exclaimed.

"Madge! What in the world are you doing here?" he wanted to know.

She smiled happily. "I—I came after my 'dear.' I'll—I'll be good, Jerry," she promised chastely.

That evening Mr. Dayton and the guide smoked contentedly as they watched the firelight dance on the walls of the rude cabin. They discreetly kept their gaze turned from the pair in a darkened corner of the room. Youth must be served.

"But aren't you going to stay for your other deer?" queried Madge.

"I've all the law allows, now," Jerry told her.

"Two, dear," he corrected. "A handsome buck—and this one here."

Darkness is sometimes a blessing.

SEEMS A GOOD SPECULATION

Average Motorist Will Believe That Company Building Bridge Has the Correct Idea.

A thousand spans! Where from—where to? New York to Liverpool is perhaps suggested, as you undertake to calculate mentally how far a thousand spans like those of the Queensboro bridge would reach. It is no such ambitious project, however, for the thousand spans of this bridge would not cover the distance from the Woolworth building to Sandy Hook. The spans will be very short—only about 14 feet each—but even so, it will be some bridge.

A mere $2,000,000 will build the 14,000 feet of structure and 16,000 feet of approaches, which seems a modest sum for so much bridge.

The Gandy bridge, as it is called, will be the largest undertaking of its kind in America; with two exceptions—the Flagler-Key West extension, and the structure at Salt Lake City, Utah.

Its purpose is to shorten the distance between Tampa and St. Petersburg, Fla., 38 miles.

How long does it take to drive this 38 miles? How much does it cost? Many could answer the first question—very few could correctly answer the last. The Gandy Bridge company is betting $2,000,000 that at least 2,000 motorists per day will spend 75 cents rather than drive an additional 38 miles to go from one of these Florida cities to the other.

Anyone who has traversed the longer route will believe they are betting on a sure thing. The present road is, at one and the same time, both excellent and execrable: that seeming contradiction being explained by the fact that if one can drive along on the nine-foot brick-packed road unmolested by other traffic, nothing better could be desired, but when forced to yield half of it to other vehicles, nothing worse could be imagined. With half of the narrow brick road grudgingly allowed a passing car, two wheels of your machine plunge and wallow through deep holes or sandy ruts, the other wheels smoothly rolling along on the brick. You are sharing that road most of the time, too. If the racking and smashing impact doesn't fracture a spring or break an axle, you get a new respect for the material in your car before the journey is completed.—Francis W. Wilson in Popular Mechanics magazine.

Right With Her.

A girls' club devoted to bridge and general culture had invited an earnest lady to lecture. The earnest lady went at it with vim and vigor. She enumerated enough injustices to make your hair curl. She warmed to her subject, hammered the table and scared the club cat out of the room. Finally she singled out an attractive girl who seemed to be paying more attention than others. Fixing her with a steely eye, the lecturer wound up vehemently: "We must remedy these terrible injustices. Are you with me?"

"I'm with you," declared the girl, promptly. "Let's have a pageant."

Insect Radio Carrier.

The modern radio fan is advised to consider the gall midge, a minute fly, and other forms of insect life, by E. Porter Felt, New York state entomologist, who calls attention to the antennae or "feelers," of some insects and radio receiving sets. The loop antennae, such as are used in indoor receiving sets, find almost exact counterpart in the construction of the antennae of the little insects, and Doctor Felt suggests that they were designed to catch faint vibrations of the air.

These receiving sets from Nature's own laboratory are carried wholly by the male insects, Doctor Felt states, and their probable purpose is to enable them to hear the plaintive love call of the female from great distances. While the male gall midge carries the most complete model of a receiving set that is known in the insect world, the female makes no noise that is audible to human ears.

Carry Shoes on Their Heads.

In Oporto, Portugal, all the porters are women. It is nothing for a sturdy Portuguese woman to lift a 100-pound trunk on her head and carry it for a quarter of a mile without stopping. It is no uncommon sight in Oporto to see a woman walking along the street with a round basket on her head. In the basket, sleeping peacefully, is her baby, soothed by the rhythmical step of its mother.

Many Oporto women become so expert in this art of head-juggling that they can carry a folded umbrella on their heads without the slightest effort. This is very difficult to do, but to the women of Oporto it is more convenient than carrying the umbrella in the hand.

It is amazing to see a woman walking along at a comfortable swinging gait in her bare feet—with her best shoes balanced carefully on the top of her head, without any apparent effort or idea of the oddity of the performance.

In all parts of the country trees are now planted as memorials of the men who fought and died in the World War. The plan is to be commended as serving a useful purpose while preventing the erection of monuments too often lacking in artistic value.

A young man who had saved his first $1,000 and wanted to know what to do next was recently given this pointed advice: "Get your next $1,000 as you got the first. All great fortunes are built on slow, steady effort. Don't take chances or try to get rich quick. Wisdom in investing will come later as your funds grow."

Straw hats have been making a vigorous fight for recognition and they are entitled to a look-in. There is one satisfaction though, for the longer we wait to get under one the longer it will last. Perhaps we may get through the season, if it is short enough, without being forced to buy a second hd or have the first one cleaned two or three times, which also goes into money. As bad as it is it could be worse, which is straw hat philosophy.

Speaker Machold, in an address at Syracuse, before the Manufacturers' Association, declared that Governor Smith had endeavored to fool the people with recommendations to the legislature but that the Republican Assembly had refused to adopt suggestions of the governor which the Republicans knew were insincere and unsound. The speaker stated that he is now convinced that the people are aware of what the governor tried to do with his prescriptions to cure every governmental ill. The speaker also said that the Democrats ran true to form in promising everything and performing nothing.

LITERATURE AND WAR.

Great literature seems to find its most invigorating soil in sorrow and privation rather than in happiness and prosperity. Did not Dante and Milton rise to loftier literary heights in depicting the turmoil and misery of hell than in attempting to describe the peace of heaven? This reflection is suggested by some recent interesting remarks by two American newspapers. The New York Evening Post having rendered high tribute of praise to Kipling's latest work, "The Irish Guards," and wondered why "so few books of fine literary quality or patriotic urge have been written by Americans since Armistice Day," the Louisville Courier-Journal ventures to say.

The explanation, it would seem, is not far to be found. Directly this failure may be traced to the fact that soon after the war's close, patriotic aspirations gained from the struggle waned when the country was plunged from the heights of idealism to the depths of selfishness and sordidness. It was a New England critic of no mean quality, the late Heman Humphrey Neill, of Massachusetts, who as early as 1850 pointed out that the really great literature of America, up to that time since the close of the American Civil War, had come from the south—"the literature of defeat," though not of despair, reviving recollections of Story's "Vae Victis," and of the Latin line, "The victorious are pleasing to the gods, the vanquished to Cato." Certain it is that "lost causes" have sensibly enriched literature from the days of Xenophon's "Retreat of the Ten Thousand," the bondage of Israel, to Mary Johnston's "The Long Roll."

Accepting and logically following out this line of argument, it might be concluded that the greatest literature of the World War is to come from Germany, for, though Germany may have suffered less in the matter of real privation and grinding taxes than some of the other nations involved, Germany played for tremendous stakes and went down into abject defeat. To such a conclusion, however, there is the objection that Germany does not appear to see or accept its defeat, being still blinded by a stubborn chauvinism and being moved—the government and people alike—by a spirit of shifty evasion, in lieu of an honest and courageous facing of the situation. Instead of a heroic rebuilding from the bottom under the blasts of misfortune, Germany presents the spectacle of a prosperity founded in dishonesty and make-believe. If the war's idealism is moribund in America, idealism of any sort appears to be extinct in Germany.

Under the conditions great war-inspired literature is less to be expected from Germany than from America. The best has so far come from England, which suffered cruelly in the doing of what was believed to be its duty during and since the war. Great war-inspired literature may later come out of France—"bled white" France—when its people are less irritated by the German attitude, feel more at rest, and can quietly contemplate their forests of war-made grave stones.

Answers to Previous Questions.

1. What is the right name of the gopher snake, and what has it to do with gophers anyway?

The scientific name is Spilotes corais, and it is also called Indigo snake, and in South and Central America there is a representative called Cribo and Rat snake. The typical black form of the Gulf states region is a glossy blue-black, hence "Indigo." As it likes sandy situations, which are also favored by gophers, it often uses the burrows of the latter to retreat in, and from the association, has earned the name of gopher snake.

2. About how many kinds of birds are likely to pass within a day at the spring migration?

According to records at Oberlin, O., directly on the line of flight for many birds, 140 kinds were observed by one student in one day. Probably few persons could identify as many as this and not all places would show such a variety. The records were made between May 7 and 12.

3. What is the difference between a mink and a weasel?

The mink, mustela-vison, has a narrower muzzle, longer premolar teeth, and a partial webbing of the toes. The chin is always white, and occasionally the under parts show little irregular white patches. Body 15 to 18 inches, the tail taking up about half of this. Semi-aquatic, catches a good deal of fish, solitary, living in holes usually on the bank of a lake or stream. The weasel, mustela-vulgaris, is about 8 inches long plus 2 to 2½ inches of tail. Throat and belly always white. Changes color in winter, in northern situations. Nests in a bed of dry leaves in a hole in a tree or among rocks.

NO AUCTION SALE OF WINSTON ADDITION LOTS.

Selling Fast Enough Without It, Says Van Westrum.

The Van Westrum sale of lots on the old Winston tract on Albany avenue has proven very successful. In speaking of the sale Mr. Van Westrum, the owner, stated today that the sale had more than met the most sanguine expectations. In one day about one-half of the entire addition has been disposed of by private sale and inquiries and prospective purchasers make it look possible to complete the sale immediately. It has been decided that there would be no auction sale at all since it appeared that such is entirely unnnecessary to quickly dispose of the property. There are a few lots left. The office is on the ground and anyone considering the purchase of lots may meet the representatives of Mr. Van Westrum there and he will be shown the property. Building contractors are buying some of the lots on which to erect houses for sale. Building activities will begin within a very few days, Mr. Van Westrum says.

Mr. Powell was appointed city treasurer of this city but resigned in order to become cashier in the office of the state treasurer at Albany, where he remained through various administrations. Recently he returned to Kingston and during the absence of his father, Charles E. Powell, who recently returned home from California, where he spent the winter, looked after the latter's business interests. Mr. Powell has a large acquaintance throughout the city and county.

SCHOLASTIC TRACK MEET TOMORROW

Decoration Day is the day set for the biggest high school track meet in some years. The meet will include schools from all over New York State, the contestants comprising the winners of first places in all the zone meets held previously. The Union College field will be the meeting place where the representatives of the best in the various sections will make their final tests for state honors.

Among the representatives of Zone I I I are found two Kingston men, Captain Allan Powley, who will run the 220 dash, and Joe Carroll, who is to do the broad jump. These men won their first places in the sectional track meet held at Poughkeepsie a week ago last Saturday. Powley showed real speed in the 220, making it in 23 4-5. Carroll won easily in the jump, clearing eight inches more than his nearest rival, the Kingston man's distance being 18 ft. 6¼ inches. Both these fellows have been putting in some extra hard work for the past two weeks, training for this state meet. Carroll has tacked on a little more to his jump and should show up well in the championships. Powley will probably hold his own at the meet, for there are few making any better time than the Kingston fellow can do now.

Other contestants in this meet who will represent Zone I I I are O'Leary of Newburgh, for the mile run, Thompson, Newburgh, 100 yard dash, Cadel, Port Jervis quarter mile run Joyce, Port Jervis half mile run McKeavor, Newburgh, 12-lb shot-put; Martin Newburgh, running high jump, Buley Port Jervis, pole vault. The Port Jervis relay team will also compete for state honors. Of the contestants representing this zone a number, in fact most, look good. This section is especially well represented by Ike McKeavor in the shot put. Ike hurled the iron ball 41 feet 3¾ inches in the meet at Poughkeepsie and has tacked on a little more in practice since then.

Babies Strike For Twenty Hour Day Better Food and No Kissing Aided By American Child Health Association

We are the Kings of Babyville, the Champion Big Eaters of Bottle-land, the Supreme Snoozers of the Country of Cribs.

This is our royal edict to the babies of the nation. Let's all be husky! That's what got us where we are. In order to be strong and healthy, let's organize! Let's form the Babies' Union of the United States.

We are the hope of the future, the force of the present. All we have to do is to make up our minds what we want. We've got people where we want them. We could keep the nation awake, if we should all unite and cry at once!

Let's hope we won't have to strike for if we do it will go hard with grown-ups. We'll strike for something worth while. We'll strike for longer hours of sleep—say 20 hours a day. No compromise. Unconditional surrender! We won't stay up late to entertain company—let them stay at home, for all we care!

If we strike, we'll strike for better food. How can they expect us to be leaders of the race if they don't give us what we ought to have to eat? Mother's milk is best, as all babies know, and when we can't get that, we insist upon pure cow's milk, according to the doctor's modification, in clean boiled bottles. But we aren't like those old-fashioned babies who lived on nothing but milk. As we get really grown-up, say nine months old, we need orange juice, and beef broth and vegetables, and things. Ask the doctor.

We'd like to strike against kissing, too. We want no germs. If folks must kiss us—and personally we don't see the necessity—we prefer to be kissed on the back of our necks, or behind our left ears.

That organization they call the American Child Health Association seems to us babies to have the right idea. Herbert Hoover—babies all over the world know him—is the president. And he says a lot when he talks about the Babies Bill of Rights. Here it is:

"There should be no child in America who
Is not born under proper conditions;
Does not live in hygienic surroundings;
Ever suffers from malnutrition;
Does not have prompt and efficient medical inspection and attention;
Does not receive primary instruction in the elements of hygiene and health."

The Babies' Union will subscribe to every word of that. This edict is just to let Mr Hoover know that the babies are backing him. If any grown-up feels the same way and wants to join the American Child Health Association, he can get in touch with it through the treasurer, Corcoran Thom, at the National Headquarters, 532 Seventeenth Street, Washington, D. C.

Come on, babies! Join hands! Let's all crawl together toward our goal—perfect health!

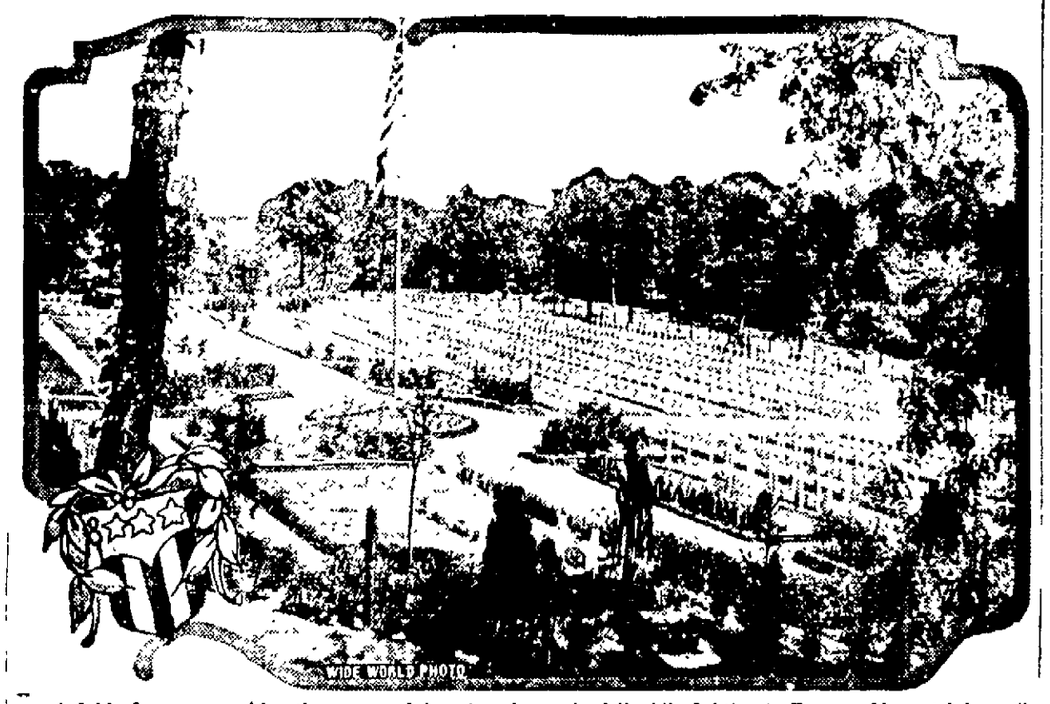
MEMORIAL 1923

AMERICAN DEAD AT REST IN FRANCE



WIDE WORLD PHOTO

A field of crosses marking the graves of American boys who fell while fighting in France. Memorial day will always be celebrated in the Belleau Wood cemetery—where the memory of the brave boys is kept green with flowers and flags.

Beautiful Spots in Which Repose American Soldiers

There is no fairer spot on all the hard-fought battle line in France than that northern slope of Belleau wood where still rest the bodies of many brave Americans.

There are plenty of other spots in France that Americans will always visit and revisit. The great cemeteries of Romagne and Suresnes are poignant beyond words. The glory of Belleau wood is that here, by the side of our hallowed dead, stands as a natural monument to American valor that jungle of stone, tree and brush through which our troops grimly fought their way in one of their first and most critical engagements of the great war.

Our men fought as brilliantly, as doggedly, in the Argonne and at a score of points. Here at Belleau wood lies a spot that can stand for all, close by the highroad from Paris to Chateau-Thierry, not far from the Marne, and amid a scene of peace and beauty worthy of its precious and immortal burden.

Beautiful Burial Place.

The eight cemeteries in Europe, in which are 30,000 American soldier dead, are maintained so splendidly that they are models for the other nations that participated in the World war. The French secretary of war recently told Colonel Rethers, in charge of the graves registration service in Europe, that the American cemetery at Romagne was the most impressive on he had ever seen. The American government has done all in its power to make the burial places beautiful.

Six are in France, one is in Belgium and the other is in England. Most of the French plots were selected to commemorate the battles fought in the vicinities. The cemetery at Romagne represents the Argonne fighting, the one at Thiaucourt the battle of St. Mihiel. There is one at Belleau wood, significant of the action there; one at Nesles, about 25 miles north of Chateau-Thierry; one at Suresnes, near Paris, in which are buried those who died in the hospitals around Paris, and one at Bony, in which are the dead of the Twenty-seventh and Thirtieth divisions, which fought with the English.

The Flanders Field cemetery, in southern Belgium, contains the bodies of 365 Americans who fought with the English in Belgium. The eighth of the cemeteries is in Brookwood, England, containing the bodies of 435 Americans who died in the British isles.

Cemetery at Romagne.

The cemetery at Romagne contains the largest number of bodies, 13,977. It covers 130 acres. The next largest is at Nesles, which covers 48 acres and contains the bodies of 6,033. In all there are 30,511 American soldiers, sailors and marines buried in Europe.

Of this number only 1,600 or about 2 per cent, are unknown dead. The number of unknown dead was reduced by 200 during the year. It is possible others of the dead will be identified as investigations proceed. Every effort is being made to gain new identifications. Descriptions taken at the time of burial are being checked up with descriptions obtained from army papers and from relatives of those who fell. The work is slow and tedious, but is bringing some results.

Except where unknown dead are being identified no more bodies are being returned to the United States. The War department feels that if permission for the return of bodies were to continue the cemeteries would be in a constant upheaval and their beauty would be marred. But it is only fair to the relatives of soldiers newly identified that they be given the opportunity of having the bodies returned.

Few American Dead "Unknown."

In comparison with that of the other armies in the World war the number of American unknown dead is small. About 2 per cent of American dead are "unknowns." The French and British proportion is about 30 per cent.

In the American army the soldiers were required to wear two identification tags one on a string around the neck and the other on the wrist. Most of the men wore the tags, but here and there were men who did not. The men in the British and French armies were much more lax in this regard than were the Americans.

The army bill carries an appropriation for the maintenance of the American cemeteries in Europe. Approximately 150 men are employed in the work. Nine are American army officers and the others, except for an army sergeant in charge of motor transportation, are civilians. A central office is maintained in Paris.

Difficulty has been experienced in getting grass to grow in some of the cemeteries. It is evident that sprinkling systems will have to be installed. At Romagne it was necessary to plant grass six times. To make the cemetery presentable for the large number of American visitors the expedient of planting rye was resorted to temporarily.

In the French cemeteries the bodies are buried in individual graves, with just mounds over them without grass. But the French intend to adopt the American idea of a beautiful lawn effect.

Blue Line Is Thinning.

A pitifully small group of men, all weighed down with the burden of years, remains to bear visible testimony of the struggle between North and South. On Memorial day a few of them, devoted to the memory of their comrades, will enjoy places of honor in the thousands of parades which will mark the memorial observances throughout the nation. Next year they will be fewer. And in a few years there will be none.

To the Torchbearers

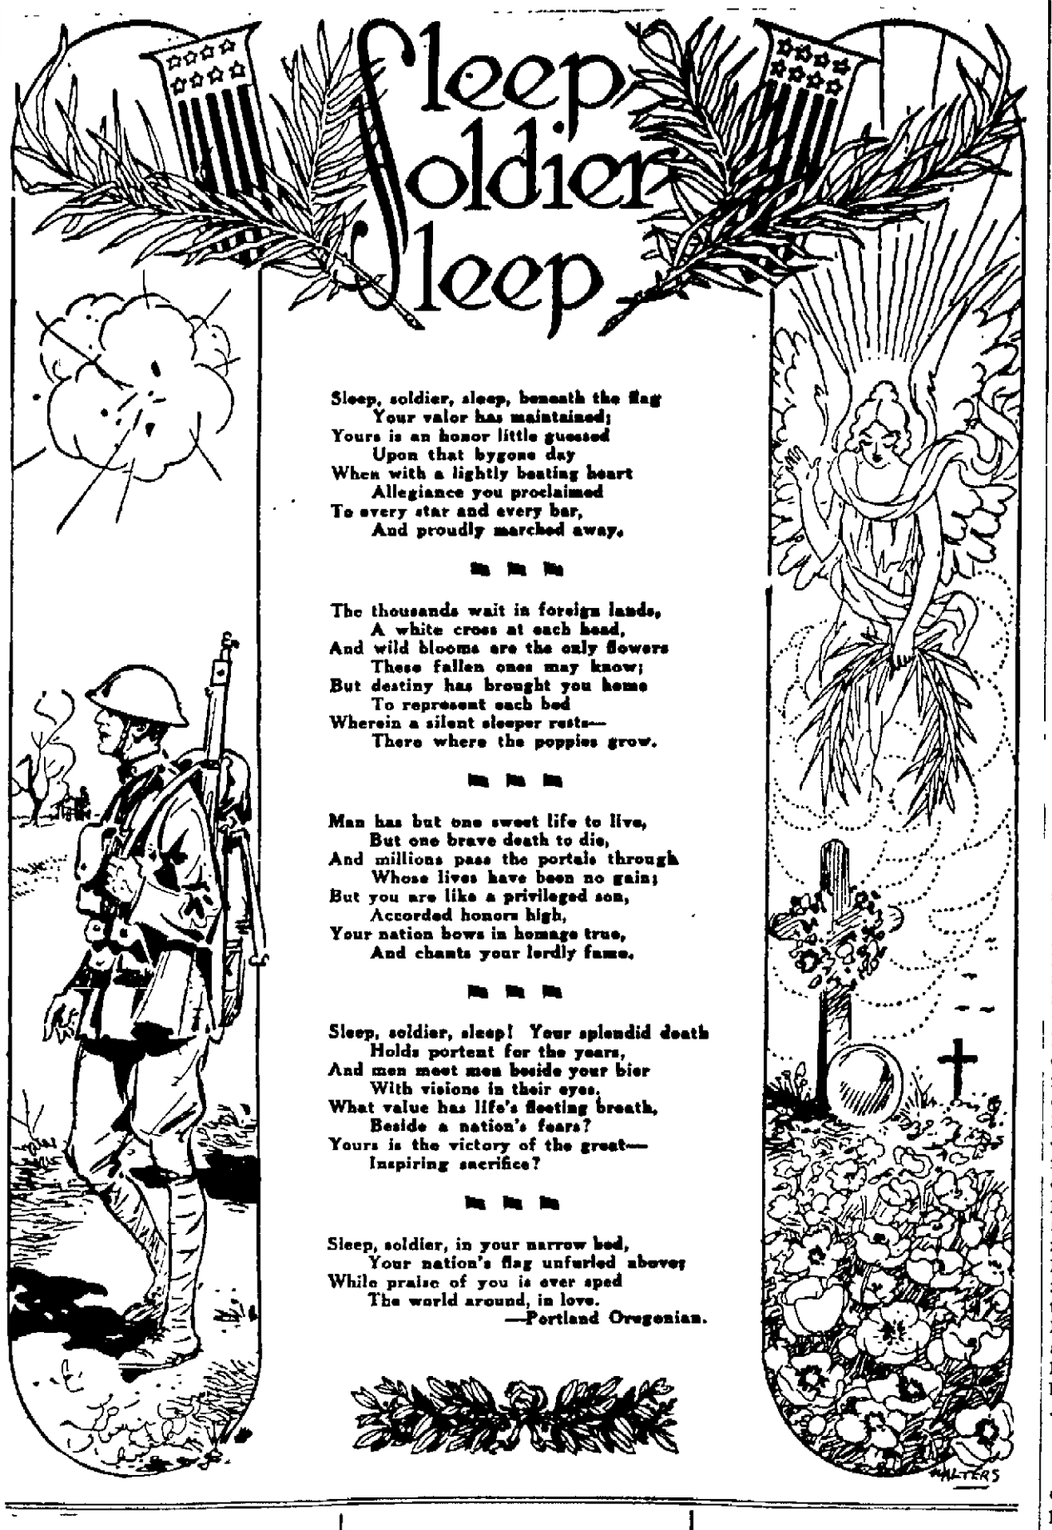
Once more we'll do them honor,
Again we'll sing their praise—
These brave who scorned life's pleasures
And lived laborious days.
At last they know the answer
Men find who die to save—
The soldier's path of glory
Doth not end at the grave!

The path continues onward
Beyond the gates of dawn.
The Great Adventure leads them
Into a newer morn.
They follow it with ardor
Beyond the Day Star's gleam,
And in the cosmic twilight
They find the Fields of Dream.

Weep not for these knights errant
Who bravely went to roam,
For they are all together
Safe in the Port of Home.
To us the loss is bitter,
But theirs is greater gain;
They have outsoared earth's shadows
Of envy, hate and pain.

We bare our heads in homage,
In reverence bend the knee,
For those who fought the fight
That all men might be free.
And while spring zephyrs murmur
Of sacrifice sublime,
We deck their mounds with laurels
Each year in lilac time.

—John H. McGough, in the New York Times.



Sleep, Soldier Sleep
Sleep, soldier, sleep, beneath the flag
Your valor has maintained;
Yours is an honor little guessed
Upon that bygone day
When with a lightly beating heart
Allegiance you proclaimed
To every star and every bar,
And proudly marched away.
The thousands wait in foreign lands,
A white cross at each head,
And wild blooms are the only flowers
These fallen ones may know;
But destiny has brought you home
To represent each bed
Wherein a silent sleeper rests—
There where the poppies grow.
Man has but one sweet life to live,
But one brave death to die,
And millions pass the portals through
Whose lives have been no gain;
But you are like a privileged son,
Accorded honors high,
Your nation bows in homage true,
And chants your lordly fame.
Sleep, soldier, sleep! Your splendid death
Holds portent for the years,
And men meet men beside your bier
With visions in their eyes.
What value has life's fleeting breath,
Beside a nation's fears?
Yours is the victory of the great—
Inspiring sacrifice?
Sleep, soldier, in your narrow bed,
Your nation's flag unfurled above;
While praise of you is ever sped
The world around, in love.
—Portland Oregonian.

Day Recognized as Belonging to All Who Served Nation

Memorial day is generally observed throughout the world this year, due in large part to the efforts of the American Legion, according to the following announcement made at Legion headquarters at Indianapolis:

"Originally designated by the Union veterans of the Civil war as a particular decoration day for their fallen comrades, May 30 gradually has become a day set apart in memory of all Americans who died for their country. Although it has long been the custom of many southern states to observe a memorial holiday of their own on April 26, the tendency to a uniform observance has been apparent since the World war. The Legion, composed of both the North and the South, officially adopted May 30 as its Memorial day and posts of the World war men on both sides of the Mason-Dixon line have, for the last three years, simultaneously honored the dead of the Civil, Spanish-American and World wars.

May 30 International Holiday.

"When the Inter-Allied Veterans' federation, made up of World war veterans of France, England and Canada, Italy and the others of the allied nations and of which the Legion is a member, adopted the Legion's date for the observance of rites for the dead, May 30 became an international holiday, comparable only in universal observance to Christmas. In the years to come it will be observed by Legion posts and allied veterans' organizations in the following countries other than the United States: Canada, Belgium, France, Poland, Turkey, Mexico, Argentina, Brazil, British Isles, Chile, China, Cuba, Guatemala, Japan, Peru, Porto Rico, Portugese West Africa, Santo Domingo, Spanish Honduras, India, Venezuela and the Canal Zone, Hawaii, Philippine islands and the territory of Alaska.

"As it did last year and the year before, the Legion will decorate and hold appropriate exercises over the grave of every American who sleeps on foreign soil, as well as thus honoring the graves of American and allied veterans who are buried in the cemeteries of this country. Legion posts in France, Belgium, Poland and Turkey will visit old battlefields and adjacent cemeteries.

Huge Task Completed.

"The United States graves registration service has completed its huge task of returning to this country the bodies of 42,023 of the A. E. F. who died overseas, but 30,000 Americans still remain permanently buried in cemeteries of the allied nations.

"To finance the Memorial day decoration of graves overseas, each of the Legion's 11,000 posts was asked to subscribe an amount equal to five cents for each of its members. A central committee of the Legion in France will receive the funds from this country and have charge of decorating the individual graves.

"Several months before Memorial day Hanford MacNider, national commander of the Legion, sent each post a request that exercises this year be made as personal as possible. 'With this end in view,' Mr. MacNider wrote, 'the Legion is ready to make special efforts to aid relatives and friends who think on Memorial day not so much of the whole army of the dead as they will of some one youth who went forth to fight and did not come back.'

All Veterans to Be Honored.

"Gold star parents, desiring that especial attention be paid to the graves of their departed, requesting a certain type of floral decoration or religious ceremony, were asked to communicate their wishes to the organization's national headquarters, from which they were relayed to the legion post nearest the place of burial.

"The Legion will not confine its exercises and decorations to the memory of World war heroes alone. The graves of all veterans of all American wars will be visited and decorated and fittingly honored. Last year the organization requested its posts and units of the Legion auxiliary to seek out, in each community, graves of all American soldier and sailor dead and to prepare charts showing where such graves were located and how they could be reached. The efforts of the World war men have resulted in many graves of Civil war veterans being rescued from obscurity and the graves of several veterans of 1812, long since forgotten, have been found and restored.

Bodies Abroad Cared For.

"A similar plan of keeping a close and honored watch on graves of Americans buried overseas has been evolved. There will be in France four principal cemeteries wherein men of the A. E. F. will sleep forever. At present a special fine arts commission is working on the project which will entail, for the collection of bodies and the beautification of cemeteries, an expenditure of more than $1,000,000. These fields of honor will be located at Belleau Wood, near Chateau-Thierry; Bony, near St. Quentin; Suresnes, near Paris, and Romagne, in the Argonne, near Montfaucon. More than 500 Americans will remain buried in England. A gift of land by the British government allows for the future decoration and care of these graves. Under plans already advanced a little cemetery for those Americans who died in England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales will be located at Brookwood, Surrey, England.

"This year still fewer of the proud, white-haired old heroes of '61-'65 will bear their colors and their flowers to the sacred ground where their comrades are in eternal bivouac. Last year the thinning ranks were filled with sturdy, tanned youngsters in their army drabs and navy blues who were honored to march at the side of the veteran patriarchs on their holy mission. The present Memorial day finds the hosts of Grant and Lee all but dissipated and as the youths of the World war strive for the honored files of the vanished procession, the day takes on a new significance."

MEMORIAL days will come and with the passing years History will narrate their observances. But far above and beyond the pageantry of these glorious days are the scrolls of eternal truth; the history which men's ideals write, the spiritual architecture which makes a nation great. Therein lies the deeper meaning of the day. And the fadeless beauty of Old Glory can only be surpassed by the response to the echoes of the far-sounding prophecies which it awakens.

OLD DAYS LIVE IN MEMORY

Stampeder Recalls Ancient Times When He Revisits the Trails That He Used to Ride.

There's a scope of country that stretches hundreds of miles north and south of the Santa Fe. The tourists when they go through it pull down their windows for fear of the dust. You can hear 'em say, "What an awful country it is; how desolate and destitute of life; a person would surely die of loneliness living in such a dreadful place," etc. Well—that's where I'm headed for, if I don't get my throat cut by barb wire before I get there. The water-holes are 40 miles apart and maybe dry when you get to 'em. You'd be surprised, but there's cattle there and no fences. Fact is, the country ain't worth fencing. The only gate is on the corral by the spring. When you get out of it on your crow-hopping bronc you're free to go whichever way you please. The old trails are the same there, and I can spread my loop without getting it caught in a fence post. It's a place where nesters never stop and sheep can't live.

Some folks call it the country God forgot, but I thinks different.

As I'm setting upon this little knoll, taking a last look at the country where I'd put in so many hard rides, a little coyote ambles up the side of the hill, sees me and stops, starts to run some more, then somehow feels that I'm harmless and stops again. I see him limping and notice a trap kept one of his paws. He, too, has been crowded a heap, and somehow I have more admiration for him than I used to. I'd like to let him know we're no enemies no more.

The sun is going down as I straddle my horse and head south for an all-night ride. It's most dark before I look back. I can see the outline of the river breaks I know so well, and not so far behind I can hear the Yip! Yip! of the little old three-legged coyote—he's follering!—Will James in Scribner's.

The Weakest Link.

The victory of August 8, 1918, which Ludendorff confesses was the most smashing blow he ever received, owed its success to surprise. It was all important the Germans should not suspect that an attack was to be made and it was hoped they would think the southward movement of our troops was just to relieve French divisions. In the early hours of August 4 the enemy raided three posts on our new front at Hourges and secured a prisoner. He was an Australian. What he said made the enemy sure that the extension of our front was just to set free French troops. Another instance of the loyalty which made the surprise possible is the story of two runners making their way down the line the night before the battle. They suddenly came on a long line of tanks. "Goodness," exclaimed the one, "just look at that." "Sh," said the other, putting his finger to his lips. "I guess there's a raid on." This story occurs in "Sir Douglas Haig's Command." How many lives depended on the loyalty of that Australian prisoner!—London Times.

Real "Meanest Man" Is Found.

"The Meanest Man in the World" crops up every now and again in the police court, some chap who has robbed a blind beggar or done his poor old mother out of her savings. It is rather difficult to say which is the meanest. There are so many. And many never figure in the police courts at all, observes the New York Sun.

The other night on a Bronx Park express subway train there was a male individual who is undoubtedly a charter member of "The Meanest." He was standing in front of a seated old woman who was worried as to her destination. When the train pulled into the Fourteenth street station, "Is this Ninety-sixth?" she asked him timidly.

"Yes, ma'am," he replied, and slid into the seat which she, in a hurry, vacated.

Swedish Queen Founds Home.

Queen Victoria of Sweden has just begun the establishment of a rest cure for women as her investment of the $45,000 which she received on her sixtieth birthday, last year, as a gift subscribed by the women of her country, and her popularity has been enhanced more than ever by this act.

The site of the new rest cure, says a Stockholm paper, is the picturesque island of Oland, in the Baltic, just off the southwest coast of Sweden, where the queen's favorite summer villa, "Solliden," is situated. She has purchased three houses, which will be reconstructed for the new institution.

Surplus on Hand.

An elderly young lady passed the club window. Most of those assembled at the window knew her, and the general verdict was that she was a nice girl but had entered the old-maid class. One clubman spoke up.

"Serves her right."

He was asked to explain and did so.

"Ten years ago she refused to let me have a kiss."

"Well?"

"Now she has a large stock that she can't dispose of."

Heart Twice Normal Size.

Staggering and falling on the sidewalk at Miles Platting, England, an ex-soldier was found, on removal to the infirmary, to be dead. He had been discharged from the British army as medically unfit, and pensioned. A post-mortem examination indicated that death had been due to valvular disease of the heart, the man's heart being twice the normal size.

Mapl-Flake is just the thing for you to eat in the morning—appetizing, full of flavor, and genuinely nourishing. It is rich in body-builders—in the mineral salts of phosphorus, iron and lime. It contains those life-giving vitamins which stimulate the appetite and then feed it.

Mapl-Flake is selected whole wheat, sweetened, flaked, and toasted to a delicious brown. No wonder so many mothers are serving it—and their families never dream there's any bran in it.

$1000 in Prizes for Jingles

Write a four-line jingle telling how good Mapl-Flake is and how good it is for you. First prize, $250—and 165 prizes in all. You have a fine chance to win—especially if you're a Mapl-Flaker. UNIVERSAL COMPANY GETS MANY REPEAT ORDERS

That the various state highway departments appreciate the products of the Universal Road Machinery Company of this city is shown by orders recieved recently. On Saturday last the Pennsylvania highway department placed an order for three 10x18 portable crushing plants with 30-ton portable bins. This makes fifteen of these outfits purchased by the above department within the past two years. The New Hampshire highway department has just purchased a 12x24 crushing outfit and New York state has placed orders for six 550-gallon and four 300-gallon asphalt heaters, besides a carload of concrete pipe for culverts. The township of Plattekill has also bought a 25 ton portable bin with screen and a twenty-foot folding elevator.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Pretty Gown.

4331. Here is a very pretty model, with a new sleeve effect. It is a style that is attractive for combinations of material. Lace and silk, linen and gingham combined would be pleasing.

The pattern is cut in 8 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48 inches bust measure. A 38 inch size will require 5 yards of 36 inch material. To make panel and sleeve drapery of contrasting material, will require 1½ yard 36 inches wide or, 3¾ yards 18 inches wide. The width of the skirt at the foot is 2¼ yards.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department. The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Catalogue Notice.

Send 15c in coin or stamps for our up-to-date spring and summer catalogue, containing 550 designs of Ladies and Misses' and Children's Patterns, a concise and comprehensive article on dressmaking also some points for the needle (illustrating 16 of the various, simple stitches.) all valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

Properly adjusted wrist pins break at times, and make trouble. Insurance will make good your loss, both for damage to your car and to the person or property of others if involved in a mixup.

Bunkered Snake Is Killed by Golfer

A story is told of two golfers, both of the duffer class, who drove from the tee, one slicing in the rough and the other landing on the fairway. The latter saw his opponent wade out into the tall grass and, after reaching the spot where his ball had apparently landed, pull out a club and take about ten vigorous strokes without effect. On the next effort the ball flew out and reached the green, where he ran it down in two putts.

"Well, how many for the hole?" queried the man who had been down the middle of the course.

"Four," was the answer.

"Why, didn't I see you take at least ten shots in the rough?"

"Oh, you mean over there," said the other nonchalantly, "then I was only killing a snake."

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

CHARLES NORMAN

Billie Brownie was just as excited as he could be. He could hardly talk so anyone could understand him. It was all because of his excitement.

"So Much Attention."

"Mother Nature," he said, "I must see him at once! Oh dear, dear Mother Nature, I didn't mean to speak like that. I didn't mean to say it in such a commanding, rude way. But I am so excited that I said that I must see him when I meant to ask you, dear Mother Nature, if you would be so good as to let me call on him just as soon as possible?"

Mother Nature smiled her big, generous smile and said: "But Billie Brownie, I don't know whom you want to see. You must tell me! That's my command! Do you want to see the flowers or the butterflies and understand what they have to say?

"They're all at their best now that the summer time is here."

"Oh, no," said Billie Brownie, "much as I love the flowers and the butterflies, I don't want to see them now, even though they are at their best in the summer time, which is the present time.

"I want to see none other than Charles Norman!"

Now Billie Brownie was often given permission by Mother Nature to talk to her children so he could understand their languages.

"Of all I've ever seen or ever want to see I know Charles Norman heads the list," he said.

So Mother Nature gave Billie Brownie her gift of understanding for she knew at once of Charles Norman.

And so it was with joy that she sent Billie Brownie forth to talk to Charles Norman.

He was on a porch out-of-doors, in a big white carriage, and he was dressed in the best clothes he had and that was saying a good deal. He had most beautiful clothes. Sometimes when the big people were looking at him and smiling at him and loving him with their sweet voices and their affectionate looks he would chuckle to himself: "They do pay me so much attention, and how much they give me. I have the most extensive wardrobe, yes, the most extensive wardrobe."

"Extensive" was a word Charles Norman was very fond of.

"Yes, they've given me everything to wear. They just have showered me with garments. But that day will cease when they present me with clothes. When I grow up I don't suppose all my mother's friends and relatives and my daddy's friends and relatives will come and say:

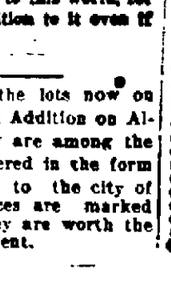
"'Here's a fur-lined coat for you, Charles Norman.' Or, 'Here's a pair of rubber boots and five pairs of ordinary ones and a suit for every day in the week.'"

"Hello, Charles Norman," said Billie Brownie, "I am mighty glad to see you."

"Glad to see you, too," said Charles Norman, who had been given a very cordial, sweet nature by his mother as one of her gifts to him.

"What's your news?" Billie Brownie asked.

"My daddy takes snapshots of me to his office and instead of doing work all the men look at my pictures. That's showing you what I do! I interrupt business, but what is business compared to my pictures, my daddy says, even if some of them are poor, for I'm not going to look straight at the sun even if the sun is magnificent. And sometimes there is no sun and then I can hardly be seen in the pictures.



"Glad to See You."

"They call me a little squealer and they say I have a powerful voice, but it is when my voice is still that my mouth is handsome. My latest game is to count the number of times my mother says how sweet and wonderful I am and the number of times my daddy says so, and see who says it more often than the other. They're even in the race at present.

"I've a beautiful mother, clever too, and so awfully nice, and my daddy is just all a daddy should be. As for my grandfather—well, there's a noble man if ever was one! So if I'm just a little bit nice it is all because I live amongst such people that I'm getting the habit!"

"You're a splendid boy," Billie Brownie said, "and I admire your golden hair and your dark, bright eyes, but most of all I admire you—and I am so glad you came to this world, for you're a mighty addition to it even if you are but a baby."

Go out and see the lots now on sale in the Westrum Addition on Albany avenue. They are among the last that can be offered in the form of a new addition to the city of Kingston. The prices are marked on each lot any they are worth the money.—Advertisement.

The KITCHEN CABINET

(©, 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

Man has been called "the representative product of the universe"; and we do well to remember that in this position his actions represent the worst of which nature is capable, as well as the best. He summarizes her goods and he summarizes her evils.—L. P. Jacks.

SPRING FOODS

It is one of the surest signs of nature's friendliness for man that she seems always eager to provide what he needs when he needs it and in such a form as to make its use agreeable.

In summer when heat and humidity combine to make heavy foods really dangerous nature furnishes us with fresh juicy fruits rich in cooling acids, vegetables and greens to supply the needed tonic for the system clogged by the heavy foods of winter.

Spinach, dandelion and many of the so-called weeds of the garden make most palatable dishes when cooked and well seasoned.

Egg and Spinach Salad.—Put two hard-cooked eggs through a coarse sieve, one pint of cooked and chopped spinach, one tablespoonful of mild onion finely chopped, one green pepper chopped, one-half cupful of celery finely cut, salt and pepper to taste. Mix all the ingredients and moisten with mayonnaise dressing. Mold and when ready to serve garnish with egg white cut into petals, and mayonnaise dressing. Chill well before serving.

Ciubette Sandwich.—Prepare plain scrambled eggs. Toast medium-thin slices of bread, butter and cover one slice with a layer of the cooked egg, sprinkle with finely minced parsley and Spanish onion, cover with a leaf of lettuce, spread mayonnaise on the lettuce, then cover with the other slice of toast. Serve garnished with crisp bacon and dill pickle cut into waferlike slices; spread in the form of a fan.

Egg and Fish Loaf.—Take three hard-cooked eggs, one cupful of tuna fish, one cupful of boiled rice, one teaspoonful of minced onion, three thin slices of bacon cut into tiny bits, salt and pepper to season and milk to moisten. Mix all the ingredients and put into a greased baking mold. Slice the eggs and arrange around the fish. Bake thirty minutes, turn out on a hot platter and serve with tomato sauce.

VICTIM OF [illegible] DISEASE

Affliction From Which Lord Byron Suffered Has Been Diagnosed by Modern Physicians.

Lord Byron's lameness, which soured his life and puzzled his biographers, but did not prevent his swimming the Hellespont, has been submitted to modern diagnosis and found to be a brain disease, according to the London Daily Express.

Dr. H. C. Cameron, in a lecture to the Royal Society of Medicine, reported in the "British Medical Journal," suggested that Byron had "Little's disease," in which a certain injury to the brain at birth brings a stiffness and awkwardness usually confined to the legs.

"The gait of Little's disease," said Doctor Cameron, "is stiff and awkward. At rest or during sleep nothing amiss is to be noted, but when a voluntary act such as walking is attempted the limbs are gripped in a kind of spasm. The knees tend to be pressed together and the body rises stiffly on the toes."

Something to Talk About.

Is it always sunny in California?

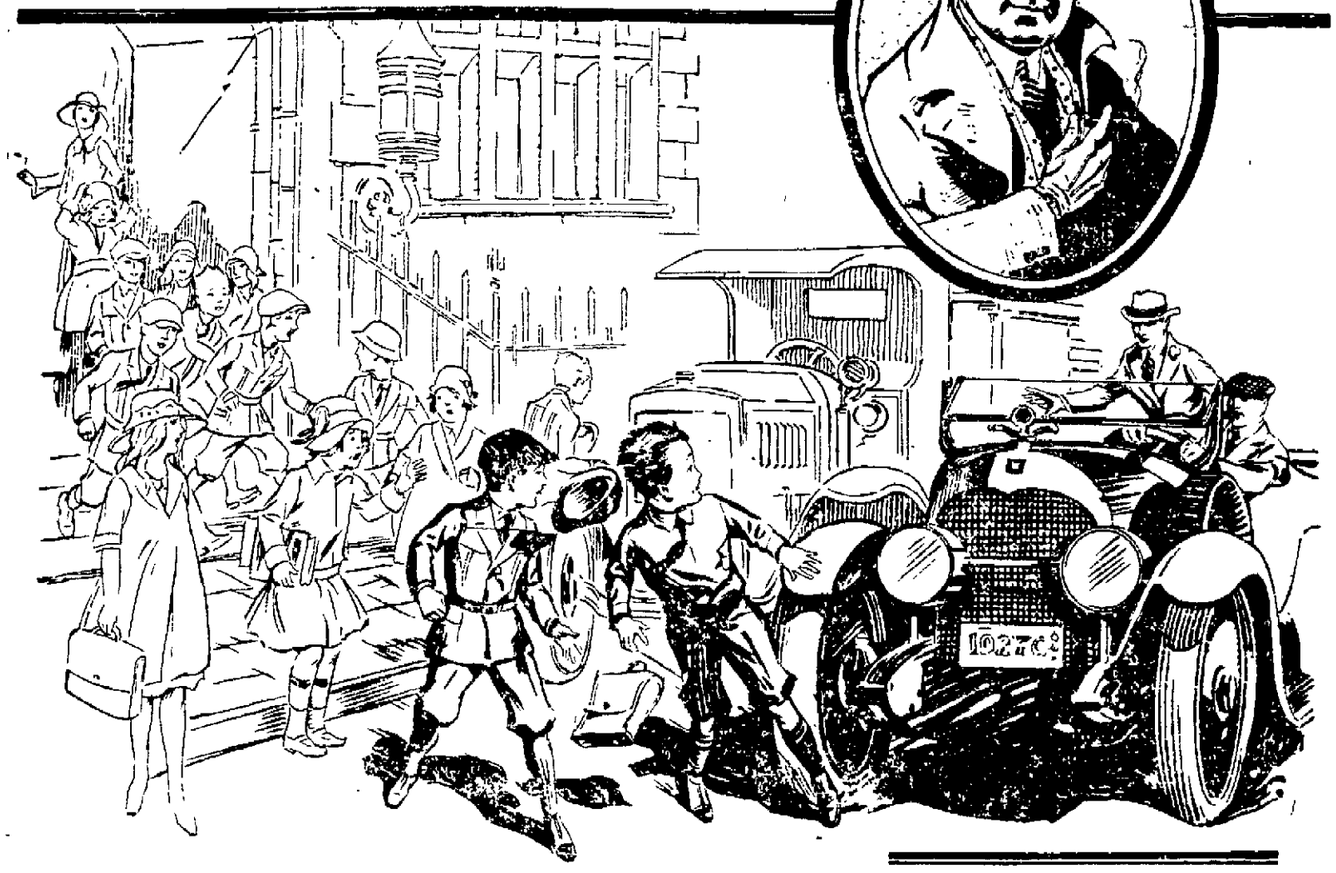
No, indeed. It rained a good deal of the time I was out there but the Californians don't seem to mind that. It gives them an opportunity to tell you just how sunny California is when it is sunny.

Charles Carr Sold Ty Cobb for $750

Charles D. Carr, a business man of Atlanta, Ga., is the man who sold Tyrus Raymond Cobb to the Detroit club for $750.

Many have thought Carr foolish for making this sale, but he was wise in doing it. Had Carr held on to Cobb for another week the player would have been drafted and all Carr would have got was $600 so Carr, by selling Cobb for $750, really made 50 per cent.

The VETERAN MOTORIST gives a few rules of the road



"SOMEONE HAS SAID THAT 'IF' is the biggest little word in the language. If a very close friend of mine had used his head on a certain day, he wouldn't have knocked a school boy down and come within an ace of crippling him for life.

"It was queer, that day, about Jerry. Usually, a good, cool, level-headed driver. But, somehow, his attention must have been wandering, and as the kid ran out in front of him—he did the wrong thing. And he was upset about it for months after.

"His insurance company settled up the case in due time. But Jerry said something to me after it was all over that set me to thinking and I'll never forget it. Said he: 'My liability insurance protected me, but it didn't protect that boy. It paid the doctor's bills but it didn't help that youngster's suffering one iota.'

"I'd never thought of it in just that way before, but I have ever since. Youngsters are careless at times and it's up to us motorists to make up for what they lack by using more than ordinary care when they're around."

"More than ordinary care shall be exercised by the driver of a motor vehicle when nearing a school from any direction. A 'school zone', is that section of a highway directly in front of and usually 100 feet to the left and right of the school."

WURTSBORO ROAD IN FAIR SHAPE

Motorists Must Travel Carefully Over Some Stretches But Route is Preferable to That via. Middletown.

Kingston motorists who have been told that the Ellenville-Wurtsboro highway is closed and impassable have been misinformed, according to several Ellenville automobile owners in town today.

The road to Wurtsboro is open all the way and is much preferred by the Ellenville motor car owners to the road by way of Middletown which Kingston motorists have been advised to take.

Construction work is being carried on in one section of the Ellenville-Wurtsboro road, but the subbase has been laid and travel over that section necessarily must be slow. The only bad stretch of road between the two places extends for a distance of about one hundred yards and travel over that stretch requires careful and slow driving.

Beyond the bad stretch mentioned and nearer Wurtsboro the highway is in the same general condition that it was a year ago. About three miles of the distance is new state road, in fine shape.

Between Kingston and Ellenville fifty men are engaged in making repairs and the road is in better shape than it has been this spring.

Motorists who make the trip to Wurtsboro from Kingston by way of Middletown go forty miles out of their way and lose time.

THE BELLS OF RIVERSIDE

It has been said that our everyday life is largely fixed by the sound of bells of one kind or another, but it remained for Mr Frank Miller of Riverside, Cal., who had a hobby of collecting bells, to assemble the largest collection of bells on earth.

Each bell has a history of interest and romance. Among the noteworthies in this collection of approximately 450 bells are:

A bronze bell of graceful lines, dated 1702, which long hung in the tower of the New Orleans cathedral and later, by a peculiar turn of fate, served on the jail in the same city. A goat bell of pleasing tone, the only one of its kind, found in the Swiss, Italian or French Alps, thought to be more than one hundred years old. A church bell dated 1770, which, no one knows how long, served the master of a castle in Scotland. A facsimile of "Big Ben," the largest clock-tower bell in the world, which hangs in the tower of the house of parliament in London. An iron horse bell from Norway—thought to have been made about 1750. A bronze gong, said to be more than eighteen hundred years old, which came from a temple in China. A bronze bell which belonged to a ship that sailed from Boston in 1755. The ship was wrecked, but, after lying at the bottom of the ocean for almost 100 years, the bell was recovered. The town crier's bell which awakened the good people of Redford, Mass., the night on which the patriot, Paul Revere, made his famous ride. An ancient, acorn-shaped dog bell from China. A gong from Borneo, used in native war dances. An old-fashioned Roman bell which was unearthed in the ruins of Herod's palace at Ascalon. An antiquated, cup-shaped bell from Mecca—that sacred city of Mahomet, in Arabia. An ornamented brass Roman cow bell inscribed, in Latin, "Paul, Third, Most Holy Supreme Pontiff", indicating ownership by a pope who died in 1549. A bell, cracked and clapperless, carrying an inscription showing the date of manufacture to have been the year 1247, said to be the oldest dated bell known and to have been made or used in Spain. This bell was in existence 245 years before Columbus discovered America.

And last, but by no means the least, the forefather of the bell family, a "clink stone", which, suspended from a rope and struck with a mallet, gives off a ringing sound. The "clink stone" was the earliest form of bell known. It was used, it is thought, as early as 600 B. C.

NO ESCAPE FOR THE SEAL

Once Hooked by Eskimo Hunter, There Is No Way by Which He Can Get Away.

An Eskimo, when once he has gone to the trouble of splicing a fine spear handle, does not wish to break it, so the point is put on with a tangle or joint.

When a seal or walrus is harpooned the sudden struggle of the animal does not break the spear, but merely unjoints the point, and the more the animal struggles the more the point turns crosswise in the wound and the firmer the barbs take hold.

But the animal cannot escape, for with thongs of skin the point is connected with the spear shaft. The animal merely swims away or dives deep into the sea, carrying with him the spear. The long leather thong which is attached to it uncoils from the deck of the kyack and pays out. It carries with it a drag like a kite, which retards the animal and exhausts him, but does not pull hard enough to break the line. Even this draw is made of skin stretched over a spliced framework.

When the line is all played out it is seen to be attached to a float, which is also carried on the deck of the boat. This is made of an inflated skin. It has plugs and attachments of cleverly carved ivory, for wood is far too precious to be used in this land of ivory so far from the forests.

The float serves as a buoy so that the Eskimo can follow the animal and find it after it gives up its struggle and dies. Then, too, the float keeps the catch from sinking and being lost in the ocean's depths.

When you need plenty of light

For city driving, lights do not count for so much—just enough illumination to cover the law, and that is all a driver demands. But out on a dark country road, adequate lighting often means the difference between safety and disaster.

If you have a temperamental battery, you follow the road only by intuition. But with a good, healthy battery, each turn in the road, each hole, each stone, is plainly visible to you as you sit behind the wheel.

The importance of having a powerful, dependable battery in your car cannot be exaggerated. It means safety. It means comfort.

Real lasting-power

Rugged power is built into the Exide Battery. It lasts so much longer than other batteries do that it has earned year in and year out the title of the long-life battery.

There is economy in owning an Exide, not to mention safety and comfort. You will find an Exide the right size for your car at the nearest Exide Service Station.

BREAK QUARANTINE IN PORT EWEN

Port Ewen, May 28, 1923.
Editor, The Freeman:

A short time since an accident occurred in the village of Port Ewen, the result of which might have had a serious termination.

The subject of this accident was a youth of tender years by the name of Ernest Hutchings Cutler, and the sympathy of our whole community was aroused and extended to the ... in his suffering, and to his parents, Calvin Cutler and wife. The injured boy was conveyed to the Kingston City Hospital for treatment, and it was obvious that a complete recovery would ensue, but during the time he was an occupant of the hospital it was discovered that the patient had become afflicted with scarlet fever. I presume that in order to avoid contagion, those having charge of it decided to return the boy to his own home where he could have the attendance and care of the mother. The boy was brought to his mother's residence in an automobile in which were members of the family, the residence being in one of the most exposed parts of our village. Our health officer, Dr. J. A. Decker, was notified of the transfer by the hospital authorities and of the nature of the disease. After satisfying himself that the report was correct, he was in duty bound to quarantine the premises, which the doctor did, the notices being posted on the building and at the same time issued his orders to comply with the same. This quarantine was publicly exposed so that any person who could read the English language could very easily understand the meaning thereof. Notwithstanding this strict quarantine and the explanation of the health officer there has been hardly a moment during the day time but that the law has been violated, neighbors are intercepted in close proximity to the house, some are invited inside of the danger line where they remain a sufficient time to create themselves carriers of the disease, small children are allowed to mingle with children of the family until scores of people have become exposed, and the school authorities discovered that two of the children in the family who have been in close contact with the suspect were in the school room and would have been in a position to innoculate all of the other children in the room they attended.

The vital question now is, whether residents of this village are not endowed with sufficient understanding of the nature of a quarantine exposing themselves to this contagious disease and allowing themselves to become impregnated with it, especially those who have small children in their own homes; another question is, whether the mother and family of the child shall be allowed to enter public stores and other public places and be a menace to the life and health of others.

The only remedy is for the board of health to empower its health officer to enforce the law in this and in any other similar case.

I hope that the neighbors may consider the misery they are liable to bring on innocent children and respect the law. I was very much surprised at a statement made in your paper by the Port Ewen correspondent in which she refers to the "Busy Street Liar." If it was a matter of news she sought in order that she might enrich herself by adding four lines to her usual contribution there might be an excuse, but if the statement was made from pure motives it is certainly a case of gullibility and does not inspire confidence in the truth of "Port Ewen News."

I presume that the correspondent as well as other people have been influenced by statements made by members of the quarantined household one statement especially "that Dr. Chandler declared that the child did not have scarlet fever." This has been iterated and reiterated by the mother and her friends until some of the neighbors are believing it, staking their honor and the health of their children upon the truth of this assertion. Some of the neighbors have not even taken the time to inquire if Dr. Chandler ever made this statement, but have taken the assertions of the parent as the naked truth and have become participants in the effort to hurl defiance at the health authorities and block its honest endeavor to prevent the spread of this virulent disease. I presume that if Dr. Chandler publicly announced that he had never declared the case not scarlet fever that there would still be doubt in the minds of the especial friends of the family. The writer has been informed that Dr. Chandler has denied those statements, that he never has said that the child was not afflicted with scarlet fever, ... that is the only excuse for the ... lessness of the neighbors. It is hoped that more caution will be exercised in the future.

I trust that some of the interested neighbors will ascertain what Dr. Johnston, health officer of the city of Kingston, Dr. Stein and other reputable physicians of the city, who are all connected with the Kingston Hospital and who came in direct contact with the case while the child was in the hospital, may have to say.

When the time for danger from exposure expires and members of the family are so circumstanced that they will not carry the infection, the board of health may have reason to inquire as to the defiant attitude of the family and if there has been flagrant violations of the quarantine, they should be compelled to pay the penalty and suffer the punishment it deserves.

OUR GREAT SALE WILL END SATURDAY NIGHT AT 10:30

You (Mr. Piano Buyer) should take advantage of the two remaining days. Come here today or tomorrow with your buying clothes on. We will not hold a single instrument. Down go the prices. Out go the Pianos. This will be our watchword from now till Saturday night. There will be a rush here on Saturday that we are sure of. You must call as soon as possible, so as to avoid the confusion that usually exists at the close of all big sales. Bring the wife and family along. Two heads are better than one. Pianos and Players all must go. Such pianos as Lester, Leonard, Schaff Bros., Mathushek and a dozen other makes are right here. Are you willing to step in and ask us our lowest figures on one of these instruments? If so, you can save from $100 to $150 in the next two days. Remember the great sale closes at 10:30 Saturday night. We are done. This is our last ad.

The sporting editor of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle classifies them as "One of the leading semi-pro teams in Brooklyn." The morning game will start at 10:30 and the afternoon game at 3:30.

Most forest streams are slightly acid—a condition known to be well adapted to trout—but forest fires often cause a deposit of ash which gives the streams an alkaline quality most destructive to fish life.

It is a most unhappy and unhealthy thing to have too critical eyes for others.—J. H. Neesima.

TURTLE? NO!

This is a sample bed bug that may be found in this section of the state. Should you find them during house cleaning time don't worry, as it is easy to rid them with the use of the New Chemical P. D. Q. (Pesky Devils Quietus.)

No matter how large they may be, color or sex or where they came from, P. D. Q. will kill them and their eggs as if liquid fire had hit them.

Not an insect powder, no dust or smear; will not injure clothing, and will actually kill Moths, Roaches, Coaties, Bed Bugs, Fleas and Ants and puts an everlasting to the Pesky Devils, as it destroys future generations. Impossible for them to exist with its proper use.

Get from your Druggist's a 50c package; this will make a quart; each package contains a patent spout to get them in the hard-to-get-at-places. Special Hospital and Hotel size makes five gallons. P. D. Q. can also be purchased in liquid form in a handy bottle with patent spout in each package. Your Druggist has it or can get it for you.

VAN DERZEE'S SPEECH AT WILLIAMS MEMORIAL EXERCISE

Henry Van Derzee's speech Sunday at the Franklin Street Church in presenting the hymn board memorial, was as follows:

This is a great honor that has been accorded to me today and one which I shall never forget, especially when there are so many others better fitted to perform this pleasant duty than I.

Please let me draw your attention to that little Bible verse which says: "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord, for they rest from their labors and their works do follow them." We of Kingston are able, through the death of one very dear to us, to fully appreciate the truth of this verse. Truly her works do follow her. Who of us now living and of an age to realize can ever forget the work which she has done among us for the past thirty-five years I still, in my imagination, can see that dear, sweet, cheerful face and those capable, careworn hands that were ever toiling in the arduous task of teaching little children.

Her Christ-like life was one such as should be imitated by those whose formative minds she so carefully molded. Nay, there is not one of us here who could not well afford to imitate and emulate her in at least one of her sterling virtues.

Hence, while we ourselves need no monument to perpetuate her memory, it is highly appropriate that there should be something to bequeath that memory to posterity.

What should that something be? Should it be of stone or of wood? Let me answer my own questions. Let whatever that something is be made of wood. Why? Because wood is so cheerful, so expressive, so live, so full of heat and energy, while the best that can be said of stone is that it is cold, cheerless and lifeless. To keep memory alive we need no dead stone, we need live wood. We do not wish to see our church made a veritable graveyard of stones. Then, too, this memorial should be something of which the church stands in need and something which she would have loved to have seen there.

Therefore, I take great pleasure in presenting to the Franklin Street M. E. Zion Church on behalf of our Sunday school, this hymn-board in loving and tender memory of our dear departed teacher and friend, Miss Frances Williams.
